

LESSONS LEARNED

"I have gained a deeper appreciation for working on a project and seeing it play out until the final product is ready and complete"

RILEY HAMMOND, Arts & Sciences Representative

"I learned how to communicate with people who have big-minded personalities, instead of clashing we all come together" OJI ANDERSON, Architecture Representative

"Student Association has a lot more power than students realize and we are a crucial step in helping get students' opinions out there. I don't think people realize how much we can help them in times of need and more students should be aware." JACKIE DIPAULO, At-Large Representative

"I've learned about being a mediator, supporter, and problem solver for students on campus and in general. Between delegating funds to organizations on campus to hosting town halls with President David Bruen to collect student opinions, every role and function of these roles involved conveying the views and hopes of students and transforming them into the change they want to see." DYLAN FRANCE, Undergraduate Representative to the Board of Trustees

STAYING TRUE TO SELF EXPRESSION

"I sing, dance, enjoy writing poetry, and put a lot of myself into my work as an academic and a leader on campus." ADIA SANTOS, Vice President

"Bullet journaling helps me organize my thoughts and plan for the future creatively" DYLAN FRANCE, Undergraduate Representative to the Board of Trustees

"I like to think of myself as a very colorful person." OJI ANDERSON, Architecture Representative

"I love to talk to people and give opinions, which is how I represent myself best, through people getting to know me and my personality." JACKIE DIPAULO, At-Large Representative

ENVISIONING CHANGE

"To create change that best serves the current and future populace on campus is our job as student government members." DYLAN FRANCE, Undergraduate Representative to the Board of Trustees

"True change on campus will center the most marginalized communities of people in an effort to empower and strengthen them." ADIA SANTOS, Vice President

"Engaging with issues to provide real solutions. It all begins with the students and being a cohesive representative for the student body." RILEY HAMMOND, Arts & Sciences Representative

"Teamwork and cooperation is extremely important and nothing should ever be done alone." JACKIE DIPAULO,
